

REVIEWER'S CONFLICT OF INTEREST DECLARATION

The reviewer's conflict of interest declaration enables the academic community to assess the impact of the conflict of interest on the views expressed in the review.

The potential conflict of interest does not mean that there is an infringement, but it may indicate that it could have a direct or indirect impact on the objectivity of decisions or on the outcome of the work. The conflict of interest must be declared before the review process is initiated.

Please keep the declaration so that it can be presented if necessary.
